Danger

The recent numerous deaths in Wrangell, some of which have been caused or hastened by some form of tuberculosis brings forcibly to our notice that it behooves each Wrangell citizen to lend every aid to the Health Committee of the Council in a campaign for a clean town. To swat the fly is a joy forever and his death stops his germ carrying power, but to remove the fly army's base of supplies is a better maneuver. Look around you and see what you can do. The condition of one backyard at a house where there had been a death, was called to the attention of the Health Committee and several other citizens including the writer, by a justly indignant neighbor who resents the infliction of unburned rubbish in proximity with the daily life of himself and family. Probably others feel the dangers though less acutely than the abovementioned neighbor who has it spread before him. To think of or see these dangers is to act.

ROBERT W. JENNINGS

OF JUNEAU

Nominated by the Democrats as Candidate for Delegate From Alaska

"I would say to my Republican friends: Let us not quarrel about National politics; let us talk about Alaska. It cannot be denied that Alaska has been hard hit by the leaders of your party; they have bottled up your coal; they have put nearly all land in Southeastern Alaska in a Forest Reserve; they have pandered to the special interests; they have overrun the land with special agents; they have denied us a local Legislature. Alaska has not thriven as it should have done. The two factions of your party have devoted more time to their own quarrels than they have to the welfare of Alaska. We have had too much of the Wickersham Shackleford feud. Senator Knute Nelson says that Wickersham is the worst man that Alaska could send to Congress, because he quarrels with everybody and opposes everything which he himself does not originate. Gifford Pinchot says just the opposite. I am not going to say which is right, but my friend, don't you think you ought to have a change? As an Alaskan, not as a Democrat, not as a Republican, not as an Office Holder, not as an Office Seeker, but as an Alaskan sincerely interested in Alaska receiving all the consideration to which she is entitled; is it not time to put a stop to the Wickersham-Shackleford feud? Is it not time to say to these gladiators, 'A plague on both your houses, we will try somebody else?'"

And rather will I say to my Socialist friend (and some of the warmest friends I have are Socialists) let us not talk of world-wide matters. It is Alaska that interests us now. You live in Alaska. You are interested in her welfare. Alaska is cold and hungry; she needs things; she needs them now, not twenty years from now. If a Socialist should be elected from Alaska now, could he put your theories into force? No. But, you say, 'it will help the cause.' Let that be granted for the sake of argument; what are you going to do, what is Alaska going to do while the cause is being helped? STOP—LOOK—LISTEN, would you rather get something within your reach than reach for something you cannot get?—(Speech of R. W. Jennings at Valdez, April 1912.)

WELDING MORE COMMON.

Acetylene Blowpipe a Great Economy
In Repairing Machinery.

It would not be too much to state that the use of autogenous welding has revolutionized motor vehicle repairing. Parts which only a few years ago would have been thrown away as useless are now, thanks to the acetylene blowpipe, repaired and again put into use.

Starting first with the repair of cracked water jackets and burning on broken lugs to castings, the use of the blowpipe has gradually extended until almost any work seems possible with it. The repairing of broken crank shafts is now quite frequent, and it is very seldom, if the work has been properly carried out, that the shaft breaks again at the welded place.

Welding teeth into a gear wheel; welding up a pressed steel frame after a breakage or after having been cut to extend the wheel base; welding on a scroll iron broken off in an accident; welding brackets on to frame, etc., are only a few instances of what can be done. There is one metal which has been found impossible to deal with satisfactorily by welding, and that is aluminum. This, unfortunately, is the metal in which the most breakages are found in motor vehicles.

Of course the bar to acetylene welding is the cost of the outfit, which is so high that a good deal of work must be done to make it profitable.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

The Retired Treasury Official.

A. Platt Andrew, who recently resigned his post as assistant secretary of the treasury, accused his chief, Secretary Franklin MacVeagh, of hampering him in the conduct of his office. He said that the "idiosyncrasies and unbusinesslike methods" of Mr. MacVeagh were such as to make co-operation with him by his subordinates impossible.

Abram Platt Andrew is a native of Indiana and is in his fortieth year. He graduated from Princeton university in 1897 and had a postgraduate study at the universities of Halle, Berlin and Paris in the following two years. For nine years following 1900 he was instructor and assistant professor in economy at Harvard. Being a special favorite of former Senator Aldrich, he became an expert assistant and editor of publications for the national monetary commission. President Taft appointed him director of the mint in November, 1909, where he remained until July, 1910, when he was appointed to the place from which he has just resigned.

Mr. Andrew is a well known writer on financial subjects and is treasurer of the American Red Cross society. As assistant secretary of the treasury he had charge of the mint, the bureau of engraving, the office of the treasurer of the United States, the comptroller of the currency, the treasury auditors and the secret service.

Rubbed it into Mr. Lentz.

Former Congressman John J. Lentz of Ohio is celebrated as a long distance orator; but, for all that, they thought out in Columbus that the editor of a morning paper there rather rubbed it in in a short account of a political meeting at which John was the speaker. This was the paragraph:

The "Marseillaise."

There is a certain irony in the fact that the town which produced the "Marseillaise" is now German territory. The song dates from April 24, 1792, when Rouget de Lisle, then quartermaster at Strassburg as captain of engineers, composed it in response to the mayor of Strassburg's request for a patriotic song. At Strassburg the song was printed under the title "Chant de Guerre Pour l'Armée du Rhin." It owes its present title to the volunteers from Marseilles, who sang it as they marched on Paris.—London Chronicle.

Blue and Green Sea Water.

The blueness of sea water is in constant ratio to its saltiness. In the tropics the tremendous evaporation induced by the blazing sun causes the water to be much saltier than it is in higher latitudes. For about thirty degrees north and south of the equator the waters are of an exquisite azure. Beyond these latitudes the blue changes to green, and in the Arctic and Antarctic oceans the greens are almost as vivid as the tropical blues.—Marine Journal.

The Voracious Cormorant.

The voracity of the cormorant has often been emphasized, and the evidence collected by the river Tweed commissioners, who pay a florin for each of the species shot, adds further testimony on that point. One bird when opened was found to contain a trout half a pound in weight; another had swallowed, among other fish, two trout weighing a quarter of a pound each. It is estimated that the life of a cormorant is ten years and that during that time it consumes about fifty tons of fish.—London Standard.

ELECTRICAL CANOE MOTOR.

Detachable Propelling Device Operated by Storage Batteries.

Detachable gasoline motor power plants which may be clamped on to the stern of a rowboat or canoe have been on the market for several years, and this same idea, applied to an electric motor instead of a gasoline motor, is shown in the accompanying illustration.

DETACHABLE CANOE MOTOR.

The entire motor weighs only thirty pounds and is operated by two storage batteries weighing twenty pounds each. A clamp is provided to attach the motor and propeller to the stern of the boat, and the batteries are placed in the boat's bottom. The motor develops a quarter horsepower and runs at 2,000 revolutions per minute.

Titanium and Alloys of Steel.

Much experimenting with various alloys of steel has been carried on by railroads and rolling mill operators to produce a rail that will give more satisfactory service than the ordinary rail now in use. One of the principal metals used in these experiments, according to the United States geological survey, is titanium. More than 250,000 long tons of rails were rolled in 1910 from steel to which ferrotitanium had been added. More than 150,000 tons of steel rails in which nickel or nickel and chromium were used as alloy were also made during 1910, and experiments were made with about 80,000 tons of steel rails in which chromium, manganese, vanadium and other metals were used. Certain steelmakers, according to the survey, are now advertising titanium steel, claiming that, although no titanium is left in the steel, the removal of gases and impurities effected by it greatly increases the good quality of the steel.

Gathers Road Dust.

A Manchester engineer has patented an apparatus which, it is claimed, will prevent the clouds of dust raised in dry weather by automobiles and other vehicles. The device, which is simple and inexpensive, collects the dust as it rises. The dust is drawn into conduits which are funnel shaped at the mouth and which run from the rear of the front wheels to the rear of the back wheels. These conduits are connected with a box into which the dust is driven by the pressure of air, or this end can also be accomplished by the aid of a centrifugal fan geared to the driving shaft of the automobile. The contents of the dust box can be discharged by pulling a lever at the front of the vehicle.—Consular Report.

The Tendency.

She—What's the matter with the woman's club? He—It's always hitting the men.—Baltimore American.
